KING'S HILL

King's Hill takes inspiration from a brave gamble long ago between King Robert the Bruce & Sir William 'The Crusader' Sinclair, deep in the Pentland hills. King Robert & Sir William were in the area tracking a rare white stag. The King staked his Pentland estate against the life of Sir William that he would be first to capture this magnificent beast. Sir William with the help of his trusty hounds, Help & Hold, won the bet. In return, The Crusader named the spot where King Robert stood "King's Hill". This gin has captured the essence of the area – bold, beautiful & bloody marvellous
